Excerpt

Aela

I'd never understood just how true being sick to your stomach was. When you were pregnant, hormonal, weighed down with guilt, heartbroken, and terrified—those were emotions that made you truly sick to your stomach.

Wanting to puke all the time and not because of morning sickness, I felt like I was a prisoner inside my own mind. I hadn't seen Declan in weeks. He wouldn't answer my calls, and he ignored my texts. On the rare occasions I had come across him, he'd ignored me, and when he looked through me like I meant nothing, it rammed home my place in his life. The side piece.

I was tagged and bagged as such, and hoping for more got me nothing. Would never get me anything other than loaded down with a welter of baggage and heartache.

I'd given up on him, I'd admit. It had been two months since the funeral. Two months for him to have gotten over Deirdre's death. I knew that sounded horrible, but he didn't love her. I knew he didn't. He treated her terribly, but then...

Wasn't that how he was treating me?

Had he already shown me his true colors and I'd never even noticed?

I should have seen the signs in his behavior around her, but I'd been a fool. A stupid, naive fool.

I saw that now.

I was getting my just deserts. I'd betrayed my friend for him. I'd been a party to him cheating on her, and in the end, that was what had gotten her killed. Lizzie Bryan had told us in recess that Deirdre had confided in her, told her that she was sure Declan was screwing around on her, and she was going to follow him to learn, once and for all, if he was.

That was why she'd died.

She'd gotten involved with Points' business, and had lost her life as a result. Her death was on me, on us... No wonder he felt horrible. I did too. I felt evil for having mistreated her that way even if we'd stopped being close friends a long time ago thanks to my growing a spine and refusing to listen to her wax poetical about Declan for hours on end.

But even if he was a bastard, I had to tell him.

I had to.

I couldn't not warn him. Could I?

I was his filthy little secret.

This story is gritty and sexy and intense. It gave me a book hangover writing it! LOL So bring a fan and tissues! ;) Mostly, though, just get ready to dive in!!! As with all my books it's available on Amazon and free to read on KU.

AHHH!! I am officially addicted to Serena Akeroyd's Five Points' Mob Collection series. Finn was delicious and Eoghan was to die for but there was something about Declan that made me fall head over heels.

Filthy Dark, Book 3 in the Five Points' Mob Collection

As a made man, obligations are my middle name.

As a Five Pointer? Those obligations are even more complicated.

I fell for her when I belonged to another.

Another I didn't love.

Another I loathed.

Who trapped me in a vise, and blackmailed me into being hers.

I was born a filthy fecker, dragged kicking and screaming into a cold, hard world. My son isn't like me. He isn't filthy.

I don't want to pollute him, but I will.

Because I'm a b*stard.

Born filthy.

I don't want that for Seamus.

I want to step up. Be the father he deserves. And Aela? I want her just as much as I want to be a part of his life.

Of course, she's nothing like I imagined. When I first wanted to wife her, she was young. Pliable. Now? She won't take what I want to give her.

She wants it all.

Every part of me.

But my heart died a long time ago. If anyone can resuscitate it, it's her, but first, I need to become a better man.

And that might be the one thing I can't do.
