

Toxic is LIVE and FREE on KU! 99 cents for a limited time!

Hello Lovelies!

It's LIVE at LAST! And for a limited time, you can grab it for the tiny price of 99 cents!

I never really gave this book baby all the love it deserved. So I've righted some wrongs, given it a new cover and a play list! But it's still the same heart-wrenching, tear-jerking love story with the HEA that (somehow--at least, according to my assistant, Anne, haha) puts your heart back together!

Blurb

We were TOXIC.
Right from the beginning.
Until the very end.

I met him when I was young. I believed he was the light at the end of the tunnel. A future I didn't dare have.

He destroyed me.

My talents were wasted until he found me, until he cultivated me, but the second I was on my way to the top, we crashed and burned. Wrecked before we had a chance to begin.

He betrayed me.

He was supposed to be my soulmate. So I stopped caring, and my focus shifted.

With the Olympics in the near distance, that was all I could think of. My life became one long round of training, until the past and present collided. Family secrets were revealed, hard truths exposed that could destroy everything I'd built, and then he crash landed into my life once more.

Toxic Cover

We're still toxic.

Still hopeless.

The future isn't bright... unless we take back ownership of it and make it ours once more.

But can we do it?

Find out in this standalone, enemies-to-lovers, second-chance contemporary romance...

And buckle in for the ride with a box of tissues. This one is a tear-jerker. It will break your heart, but don't worry, the ending will fix it back together again...

Excerpt

Disregarding most of what she said, I cast another look at Adam, almost like I was sending a net out into the ocean, hoping for a good catch.

Of course, he collided with me once more.

Just like he always would.

The thought stymied me. Made my past choices and his past decisions blur and seem so pointless. There was no free will where we were concerned. None at all.

And that was the power of the image that had gone viral, I thought.

We were helpless in this fight, and it showed, and that was why it was so poignant.

The love was there. Like the word was etched on our foreheads or something.

My throat felt thick at the thought, and I knew I needed to get my head in the game when Lori shoved me in the side twice and I didn't push her back.

"You okay?" she whispered, the second I removed my AirPods—rude, but I'd definitely carried on listening to my music through Rachel's so-called pep-talk.

I cast her a look. "I'm fine."

She studied me for a second, her eyes concerned. I knew why—last night, I'd been freezing. We had the AC on all the time at the moment, but I'd begged her to switch it off.

She thought I was coming down with a cold, and I preferred for her to think that.

Especially because, when the race was over, whether we lost or won, she'd forget all about it because the cold would burn away now that I'd reconnected with Adam.

Proving something I'd only thought about before—that after a healing, it wasn't enough for him to take me in his arms. We had to reconnect, and the fire would burn in our souls, heating me up nicely.

But, in close quarters, Adam and I were incapable of letting our guards down so freely. Only at this distance was it possible...

I hope you ladies are doing well! Feel free to drop me a line by answering this email, I always love hearing from you! Much love to you, darlings, and thank you, as always, for your support. <3
